THE COST OF WAITING

By Brian Mulally

Two different articles in this issue deal with the gym. In those articles, many reasons are given as to why we should have a gym, how it will help improve Daemen. But, what's not considered is how not having the gym hurts this school.

There is no reason for someone interested in athletics to come to Daemen College, no matter what the Admissions Department says. Consider what this means.

Students who were athletes in high school are more industrious than students who never ventured into any activity. With more people like this at Daemen, we could widen our student organizations and provide greater opportunities for students.

One of the most successful student activities on this campus has been Dorm football, but football is essentially a man's sport. That doesn't do much for the women on this campus who make up the majority of the student population.

If we had a gym, we could sponsor Dorm Volleyball, Basketball, or some other sport in which both men and women can participate.

And what about the loss of school spirit? Compare the turnout at soccer games as with the turnout at basketball games. It's not too easy to root for a team that never plays a home game.

There's been a lot of hot air about the cost of the gym. But what about the tuition money Daemen loses when students pass us by for a better-equipped school? Think of the money we don't make from Rock concerts and other events that we could have if there were someplace aside from Wick Center to hold them. Hold all of that in your mind for a moment and then see if you can honestly say that the gym is too expensive.

Daemen's gym is a central issue in the future of the school. With it, we can laugh in the face shrinking enrollment and continue to grow. Without it, we are condemned to stagnation.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

THE PDR ISN'T AS PREPPY AS IT THINKS

Dear Editor,

I feel that I must comment on the first installment of Mr. Mulally's Pants Down Republicans story.

It was truly declassé and delineated from the entire philosophy the organization was founded on.

I can't imagine a preppy visiting New York without looking up Alistair Cooke or Dick Cavett. Do I even have to mention going to Brooks Brothers? Why the attraction to the home of the golden fleece is second nature to every preppy.

The story continues to make errors on several serious points.

1.) Sears DOES NOT have a LaCoste department! Please, the thought is just too painful to further elaborate on.

2.) No preppy would pilfer from his parents' liquor cabinet. After all, Mum and Daddy are our prime economic source. Or in the words of Franklin Ford, "I always try to please my father."

3.) A preppy's natural instincts would create a powerful aversion to a tiger striped t-shirt. In fact, the mere sight of such an object may drive him to purchase yet another button-down Oxford.

4.) The closest a young preppy comes to leather is:

a.) the tabs on his webbed belt

b.) his Bass Weejuns

c.) the band of his Cartier watch (upon graduation, of course).

Obviously the younger set of the PDR has a lot to learn about life. But I fear there is no hope left for them. Anyway, they are definitely N.O.K.D. (Not our kind dear).

"Semper Paratus"

Muffy Santini

P.S. The adventures of the P.D.R. proper, as told by my brother Spence, will be forthcoming soon. So, don't give up hope fans.

Hard cover editions will be available in early Spring and our motion picture is due to be released next fall.

Sound terribly Capitalistic? You bet it is. After all, the rich get richer and the poor get poorer. We have no problem with that.

S.A. PLANS OCTOBER

By Gina Pettitt

"Students think we are a bank; at least last year they did," says Russell Micoli president of S.A.

But S.A. does much more than just handle student funds. At the meeting September 29 some of the subjects besides money which were covered include freshmen elections, warning slips, movies for the semester, Homecoming (Family) Weekend, the United Way Fund Drive, and the gym.

There have been some problems involving freshmen elections which have caused elections to be postponed. The decision to postpone the elections was made by the Judicial Board. Three of the four statements for class president were

OPINIONS: "WOMEN AND MEN HAVE THE SAME MENTAL CAPACITIES. NONSENSE!"

DAEMEN STUDENT LASHES OUT AGAINST LIBERALISM

By Timothy J. Hubbard

Liberalism's foundation rests on sand: that all men are of equal makeup and that Man is perfectable through the actions of society. This idea goes back to Rousseau's "noble savage," who was the model for the man who was perfectly good because he was uncorrupted by society.

Darwin had a hand in liberalism, the mistaken notion that Man is merely an intelligent ape. By rejecting our spiritual nature objective (absolute and unchanging), Truth is replaced by subjective (individual) truth. Liberals believe truth is what feels good and what you want it to be.

Liberal social programs are ridiculous. The Social Security Administration squanders millions of dollars each year and gives people the mistaken notion that they will be supported by the government. Putting the same amount of money into investments individually would yield much more, but would require the individual to be accountable for his own failings.

The family's accountability is also destroyed. Medicaid/Medicare is a corruption resulting from liberals failing to acknowledge the evil side of man.

Welfare is debilitating. Welfare forces men from the home and encourages sexual irresponsibility. The liberals want us to believe society is entirely to blame for poverty. Few on welfare are crippled too much to work or to have a family member support them.

Our education system shows liberalism's lack of clear thinking. Liberals want nearly everyone in college when at least half do not have the intellect (I.Q. over 130). Liberals will not introduce discipline into our schools so students expect to be entertained. We will not naturally do what is right because we have a partially corrupt spiritual side, which requires external restraints such as teachers, parents and laws.

Liberals are egalitarian, -we are all the same in ability. Rob the rich to give to the poor (lazy).

Militant feminists believe women and men have the same mental capacities. Nonsense! Read the neurological studies which show males to have a greater logical development and females a greater spatial development. Hormonal levels also affect performance, testosterone of the male increasing the capacity for productivity and violence.

Liberals believe money, food, medical care, and sexual promiscuity will make us happy. They reject the notion that laws on such matters as abortion are needed to protect the public good. For them, government exists to redistribute the wealth. The logical and historical result of lack of internalized discipline will be the discipline of a totalitarian regime. Empires crumble slowly from actions such as ours, but they do crumble.

Wait for gym Continues as the Price Tag Rises

By Robert Macre

As you might know, Daemen students have been promised an athletic facility for a while now. Students have come and gone and no such facility has been built, let alone even started. The truth is, it has been proposed since 1974.

By 1977, the funds for the building had been collected and Dr. Robert Marshall, President of Daemen College, wanted a ground breaking ceremony to begin the construction since the funds for the gym had been collected. This was suggested in 1975, and still hasn't come about. One possible draw back for the gym is that, although they have the funds to build it, they didn't have the funds to maintain it.

Presently, according to Ken Murray, Athletic Director, we now have to go

"IF THE GYM
ISN'T BUILT
WITHIN A YEAR
IT'LL PROBABLY NEVER BE BUILT."

—COACH KEN MURRAY

around and beg institutions to use their facilities for our basketball team. With our gym, the team members could practice at their leisure.

The proposed gym would be 115 ft. x 90 ft. in dimension. It would house one regulation basketball court, along with two weight rooms and fully equipped locker rooms for both men and women. It would have a 600 person capacity for basketball games and between a 1,000-1,200 person capacity for concerts, lectures, or any other large activities. The gym is scheduled to take twelve to eighteen months to construct and the present projected cost is approximately $1.6 million. In one year, if the ground isn't broken, the cost will rise to approximately $2 million.

Ken Murray, who's been the Athletic Director for the past four years, said "that if the gym isn't built within the next year or so, it'll probably never be built. If that's the case, the athletics will cease."

If the gym was built, according to Murray, it would improve the current intercollegiate programs, give us our own home court, widen the range of activities, and would also be an alternative to the Rat.

Murray said he would like to see it connected to the Wick Center because Wick is the hub of the campus. That site is impossible though due to the ground conditions adjacent to Wick. The ground there isn't stable. Tests were taken to see which spot was best for the construction. The front lawn was chosen. Behind Rosary Hill and near the tennis courts the lands is too muddy and swampy. Murray also said that the school would like to show off the new gym; it's more noticable in the front. It would also be more accessible to the Amherst community if need be.

Russ Micoli, President of the Student Association, commented that this site would be good in case the school chooses to hold any activities that would directly involve the Amherst community. Such activities could include a summer basketball league, a summer camp, or lectures. Russ also agrees with Murray that the gym could house rock concerts and other activities.

Another point Ken and Russ agreed on was that the gym would be a good place to blow off steam. Not everything would be alcohol-related. Dorm damage would decrease. We could expand our curriculum to include recreation majors, sports medicine, and other majors of the same sort. "The gym would increase enrollment at Daemen as well as graduate a better rounded individual from Daemen College (ready academically as well as socially and physically)."

Russ feels very positive about the whole thing. We are close now to a gym than before. The trustees know we need it; the time is now we need a gym. It isn't the trustees alone who want the gym. The basketball team wants it too.

As Basketball player Skip McDougal put it, "it bothers me not to have it." He doubts it will be built while he's here. The other basketball players agree. Kymm Carey, also agrees with Skip that it won't be built in the near future. Kymm Carey also added, "they don't let us know where our money goes." Jonathan Wiggins agreed with him on that. Jonathan also said that they shouldn't promise it if we can't get it. According to Michael Barnes, with the amount of tuition we pay, there should be adequate gym facilities. "The activity fee increased but the activities decreased."

For the most part, most of the old basketball players wouldn't comment because the whole situation with the gym aggravates them. They just want it built, and soon.

taken down and, though later returned, were too badly torn to be put back up. New statements are being submitted by the four contenders. As a result of this mishap, voting will be held October 5 and 6, with the winners being announced at dinner October 7.

The third copy of the Warning slips is sent to the Governing Board. The Governing Board then makes recommendations to Ron Hunter. The other two copies are put into the student's folder and a dorm folder. When a student goes before the Judicial Board the student's folder is examined and considered together with the recommendations of the Governing Board. Disciplinary action is then taken and could involve payment for damages, restrictions as to where on campus the warned student is allowed, and Resident students can be removed from campus if they receive three Warning slips.

A total of $3,084.00 was spent for the movies for the semester. This was a package deal which saved us $1500.00. Copies of the schedule of movies are available. Some of the movies to be shown include Private Benjamin, And Justice For All, Altered States, Busting Loose, and Slapshot.

S.A. has also been busy with planning Homecoming (Family) Weekend.

This year the format is being changed slightly in an attempt to upgrade its quality. Friday evening will be Comedy Evening followed by Oldies (50's) Night in the Rat. During the day Saturday there will be a soccer game followed by a dinner-dance with the Jerry D'Amico Band in the evening. A Champagne Brunch is planned for Sunday. The Parent's Club will be recruiting new members at tables which they will have set up.

ENTHUSIASTIC FRESHMEN MAKE A "SLICK" CHOICE

By Lynn Madden

No one can remember when the last Freshman Class has shown enthusiasm for their Presidency. Well, this year was different; and surprisingly enough, there were four candidates instead of two.

Each possesses a colorful personality and shares a few common beliefs. They are all persistent and planned to participate strongly, even if they lost.

"I look forward to a unified and financially strong Freshman Class," states a contemplative Dave "Slick" Emhof. Now a resident of Daemen College, he attended high school in Angola, a suburb of Buffalo. There he participated in student government, the dram club, and three years with the yearbook.

With his first college year he would like to start raising money, especially for graduation, which seems to be the priority for his opponents.

"Slick" said he would attempt to solve this task by having "a mixer beer blast, car wash, raffles, and candy and flower sales." He added, "I have already spent a summer semester at Daemen; I realize what Freshman students go through, therefore, I feel that I have an edge above many of the other candidates." He would also like to see the Freshman Talent Show and Class Dance a success and "create other new activities that will unify our class."

Unification of commuters and residents is important to Chris Schraff.

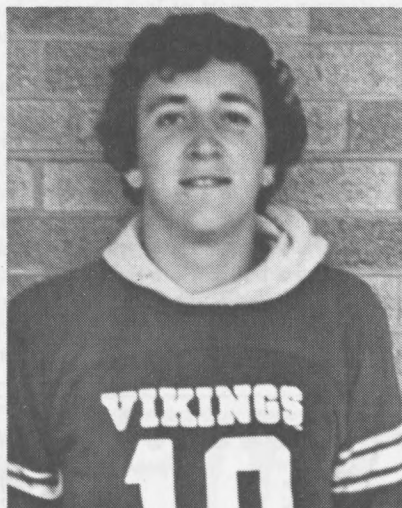

CHRIS SCHRAFF: "...the Class of '85 will be invincible."

This vivacious Long Islander would like to install winter activities, ski weekends, and sporting events.

She's been busy in her past four years at Sachem High School in a graduating class of nearly 1500. Chris was involved in track, drama (stage crew manager), football, band (clarinet), soccer statistician, radio station engineering and announcing, student council and the school newspaper.

Chris, a member of Lambda Chi Iota, is always open for ideas and states that the class of '85 will be invincible. "I wish my luck to my running mates."

Tim "Crockett" Rogers would also like to raise more money than other classes for graduation and unify residents and commuters, but he gives the Freshman another alternative. "Crockett" feels a Freshman Committee for the Freshman could help with per-

Congratulations Dave "Slick" Emhof, this years Freshman Class Presi- dent.

The unity he aims for is already starting. His former running mates have expressed their loyalty to the Freshman Class and plan to help whenever needed.

Tim "Crockett" Rogers has been appointed EPC (Education Policy Committee) Representative for the Freshman, which is a two year position. Christine Schraff eagerly volunteered help and plans on attending all the meetings. This all came about on Wednesday, October 7, during a short 'get together' meeting.

Dave feels that since the tension is over they "get along better and work well as a group." The results were very close, showing the Freshman have faith in all of these leaders.

Dave has wasted no time to get upsonal problems, drugs, roommates and alcohol, because peers help in time of need.

The first year of college is a tough one Tim realizes, and he takes his work seriously. In high school, he took part in Soccer, Student Council and was Junior Class Executive. He's a big surfer back in Long Beach, New Jersey.

This Phi Beta Gamma member means what he says, "If I win, I want my opponents to know that I will ask for all their help throughout the year; and, if I lose, I will work as hard as if I had won and I'll see you next year."

EACH OFFICER POSSESSES A COLORFUL PERSONAL- ITY AND SHARES A FEW COMMON BELIEFS

Matt Schipani was the only commuter running, but this didn't seem to matter to him. He lives ten minutes away and will devote much of his time with his class. Actually, he sees this as an advantage; he knows the area for planning activities.

He offered no phoney campaign promises and considers himself a good leader. He was previously with his student council and is presently with C.Y.O. (Catholic Youth Organization). Matt "plans on attending the CYO convention as Junior Advisor this year." If he wins he represents the Freshman; and he states, "Your ideas count."

Although this article will be appearing after the results, it should be interesting nonetheless. Welcome Class of '85.

(NOTE: Matt Shipani was not available to be photographed.)

coming events for the Freshmen underway. "We're hoping to have a Pumpkin Sale in time for Halloween, but because of bad crops, we're not sure yet." The Rat is already reserved for November 21 (the Saturday before Thanksgiving) with hopes of getting Taylor and Moore for entertainment. Plans are still being made for the Talent Show.

He describes his officers as "excellent and enthusiastic". Toni-Ann Gianforte is a helpful Vice-President, Marie Fletcher (SA REP.), Nancy Stuart (Sec.), and Cheryl Legg (Treas.) appear to be "very good and involved."

"Slick" mentioned that "it was helpful to have been here over the summer" and added "thank you for your support and help, I was glad to meet everyone; I've made some good friends." In his final statement he thought a minute and replied "Competition was tough, no one was sure who would win."

Waste of Space: The conclusion of the PDR In New York City

By Brian Mulally

When we last left our heroes, Biff, Scoop and Grogo, they had gone to New York City for a Pants Down Republican political rally but had gotten thrown into the drunk tank after propositioning three meter maids whom they had mistaken for kinky ladies of the evening.

This, however, turned out to be a blessing in disguise because in the drunk tank they met a skinny, black haired youth obscured by a cloud of strange-smelling smoke who called himself Bonger and who wanted to join the PDR.

Grogo was the first to question the prospective member.

"What do you like to do?"

"I like to drink, party, and chase after women, but not necessarily in that order," Bonger answered.

"You're in," Biff said. "Put your left hand in the air, raise your right foot, and have three fingers of your right hand pointing South and eight fingers on your left hand pointing west."

Once he had assumed this position, Bonger was told to repeat after the present PDR members.

"I, state your name," said Scoop, "promise to remember that though early to bed and early to rise may make a man unhealthy, poor and stupid, it is somewhat superior to having a lit cigarette rammed up your nose."

Then it was Grogo's turn.

"I promise to keep in mind how cute little girls are. How very cute. How very. Very cute. And how..."

"Grogo," Scoop warned.

And then Biff said:

"Remember that a PDR must stay sober as seldom as possible. That the only good gin and tonic is an empty one."

And then together they said:

"I will disrespect all forms of authority, social, religious or political, especially Ronald Reagan, that I will model my behavior on that of that great man of letters Hunter S. Thompson, and that if I see Miss New York State on the road, I'll make sure to check her credentials."

"In circulus nullus!" they shouted.

They were all going to finish the ritual by downing a quart of Jack Daniels, but they realized that they were still in prison.

Scoop then asked for his one phone call and he dialed the judge and said that if they weren't all released immediately the entire PDR would move next door to his house. They were out in three hours.

The first place they went to was McSorly's Pub where they poured a pint of gin and a half gallon of Black Velvet into a soup bowl and began lapping it up with their tongues.

"That was pretty good," said Bonger.

"Now try some of this," and he blew a stream of blue smoke into each of their faces.

Grogo was about to ask Biff what kind of smoke it was, but unfortunately Biff had turned into alarge, red kumquat. He then turned to Scoop for advice but Scoop's face had assumed the look of a rotted bowl of Cheerios.

Scoop noticed similar changes in Grogo, especially the large globs of blue hair that were growing around his ears, which had suddenly assumed a bright orange hue.

When Scoop noticed Biff growing a turnip bush out of his Adam's apple, it dawned on him that there was something special about Bonger's blue smoke. He decided to clarify the matter immediately. He turned to Bonger and said:

"Iggity, biggity, blop."

"OK nix non bibby woop," Bonger answered, Scoop understood and immediately made an announcement to the bar.

"It is forbidden to attach a Cadillac to the front of your face," he said.

This of course brought the bouncer who was so upset when Biff complimented him on the color of ballet tu-

AND GOD SAID "LET THERE BE ABACAB"

GENESIS CHANGES PACE ON NEW ALBUM

By Chris Fisher

Genesis, that tremendous progressive rock trio, has once again proved to be one of the greatest bands playing today. Their new album, "Abacab", is the latest in a long list of great albums. It displays the vast talents of Tony Banks, Mike Rutherford and Phil Collins. Even though "Abacab" does not match the creativity and originality of former Genesis albums such as "A Trick of the Tail" and "The Lamb Lies Down On Broadway", it is still an excellent album in its own right.

Rutherford's bass and guitar playing is extraordinary, Bank's keyboards are no less than amazing, and Collins' drumming and vocals are once again flawless. The title track displays the talents of these three artists to the fullest.

The single "No Reply At All", is the only questionable track on the album. The band is accompanied by the "Earth, Wind and Fire" brass section, which was fine for Collins' solo LP, but glues Genesis to much of a commercialized, "pop" music sound. The other tracks on the album are more in keeping with the classic Genesis style, but nonetheless further the development of Genesis into the 1980's.

Truly, "Abacab" is a must for all Genesis fans and anyone interested in music with a change of pace. The album is full of tight instrumentation and clean production, even though co-producer and engineer David Hentschel is absent from this album. All in all, Genesis has brought forth yet another great album with the potential to be one of the best albums of the year.
